"Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin enter the field with their first Number of an Illu-trated Goldanith, which contains the opening pages of "The Vicar of Wakefold," lavishly and artificially embelli hed with wood-cuts of the first order of execution."—Dudy Telegraph.

Weekly, One Penny; Monthly, 5d. and 6d. CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED SHAKESPEARE.

"In the first number of 'Cassell's Illustrated Shake-speare' we have the promise of a chern and banutiful edition of the poet. The type is good, the paper creamy, the pictorial embellishment laviab. The editors are Mr. and Mrs. Cowden Clarke; the artist is Mr. H. C. Solous. All this looks well for the prosperity of an edition upon which the publishers are evidently expending all their resources."—The Athenaum.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING AT 8. MARIE'S CATHOLIC [COMMUNICATED.]

On the ovening of the 12th of October, was celebrated in the solve Church a Thanksgiving for the past favourable Hervest season. While alike in town and country has been made mani-fest the expression of grateful thanks to God, it may not be alto-gether uninteresting to describe briefly our visit to a Harvest Thanksgiving, where the service was conducted after "the olden Catholic manner." Catholic manner."

The evening was one of the calmest and fairest of the past The evening was one or the calculation of S. Marie's autiful Autumn, while far echoed the sweet music of S. Marie's bells ;-through Hutton, Ovington, and Whoriton,-through valley and woodlandspath,—along the moon-lit waters of the sparkling Tees resounded the solemn chime. Winston, and even Gainford, listened to the subjued notes, floating down the vale, npanying and responsive waters.

And indeed it was fitting that upon many ears on this night, should such festive music fall, for did not the bells celebrate their first anniversary! For, while listening to their peal, we called to mind that, just a year ago, upon a sunny October day, a venerable Bishop had consecrated these glad-toned bells, fresh from the successful foundry of Mears,—for throughout England, and through countries even most remote, do not sweet-toned and mellow chimes celebrate that ancient foundry

But now, with souls prepared for joyful praise, we enter the Holy Place,—the church is decorated as for a High Feast, the tints of many flowers, and the folds of many ban an occasion of rejoicing. The Ladye Altar becomes all radiant with light, and gorgeously do the fairest flowers glow. Is it not indeed most becoming that, on days of festival, the House of Go should be decked with these beautiful ornaments of God's own

The sounds of melody without are now hushed, the bells give place to the full harmonies of the organ, and the service has begun. Hymns of praise are sung, in turn also do we meditate upon the mysteries of the Holy Rosary,-" young men an I maidcns, the old with the young," uniting in grateful praise. Visions of olden days rise before us, when we behold the altar, surrounded by the white-robed worshippers. There are seven riests kneeling before it; choristers too are there in white surplices, and youthful acolytes; while close to the sanctuary rails kneel a very multitude of young virgins, in robes of modest and medioval pattern, radiant in unsullied whiteness - their heads overed with flowing veils, and crowned with chaplets of Husbed are now the sounds of praise and the murmur of vocal prayer, for behold according the altar steps, arrayed in the ancient habit, a Monk of the order of S. Dominick!
